morning. Congratulations, balloons and good wishes galore celebrated the return of this beautiful hull to her natural element. This was the crowning moment for a winter of labor for owner David C. Cameron who bought the 34 foot Tartan complete with a huge hole in the portside, the result of the October storm of last year. The boat was moored off Antassawamock off the summer home of Robert Pozzo when the storm that grounded scores of boats tore her loose from her mooring and drove her onto the beach impaling her fiberglass hull on one of the few available rocks. The surf enlarged the damage and the result was that she was declared a total loss by the insurance company.

A month later, David Cameron bought the boat. All through his high school and college years Dave had worked for Allan Vaitses and this experience paid off handsomely. In 1977, he had built a 20 foot catboat. In little better than 4 months, he repaired the huge hole in the Tartan's hull and rendered it undetectable to the onlooker. The launching Saturday morning by Brownell went off without a hitch.

Tinker ("to repair") is well launched and well restored. Bon Voyage!

Elderly. Hickey explained that the present manhole is located 8 inches south of a gas line. He said the Housing Authority sought to extend the sewer line approximately 80 feet and to pick up the expense for the work before the resurfacing of Route 6. Selectmen agreed and voted acceptance of the relocation.

A SPECIAL THANK YOU

In November of 1979 the Boston Globe featured an article on a former New Jersey detective, David Toma. This story sparked an interest with several parents. The rest is history. It takes a strong network of volunteers to produce a program of this magnitude. I want to personally and publicly thank Ann Fournier, Carol Garey, Jane Gordon, Bette Sherman, Miriam Singer and Elaine Sylvia. Along with this core of dedicated parents we wish to thank Millie Barros and all who made our bake sale a success, the school administrators, the financial contributions, the local newspapers, the police department and finally the students at ORR and their visitors. Your courtesy and behavior on April 10th was commendable. We are proud of you.

Plimoth Plantation

PLIMOTH PLANTATION HOSTS SPECIAL EVENTS OVER EASTER WEEK

A week of special events including games for children and demonstrations of 17th century food preparation, milling and fence making will await visitors to Plimoth Plantation during Easter week.

Highlighting the activities will be a new series of behind-the-scene lectures and slides telling how Plimoth Plantation came to the story it shares with the public.

The Plantation's new, authentic animal exhibit will debut this week as well. The exhibit features many of the animals listed in the Inventories (wills) of the early Plymouth colonists. They include rare lineback cattle - two cows and two heifers - Dorset sheep, silver gray dorking chickens, a horse trained to draw a period plow, and goats.

Visitors will see the horse harrowing the field outside the Village, lineback calves grazing inside the Village, the sheep, and, if Mother Nature cooperates, lambs due to arrive within the next two weeks.

In addition to routine Village activities, the Pilgrims will mill logs over a saw pit, stage musket drills, bake breads in the outdoor clay oven, continue the wattle and daub building of John Alden's house, sheep gan volunteer training at St. Luke's Hospital for Hospice. At St. Luke's, the Hospice program aims to provide patient comfort along with medical, social, emotional and spiritual support for the terminally ill. Families, too, are assisted by Hospice during the patient's illness and afterward, during the bereavement period.

Administered by St. Luke's Visiting Nurse Service, Hospice begins with the "care givers" comprised of family members and visiting nurses. Other members of the team include a religious ministry, medical and social service personnel, home health aides and the volunteers. They all work together for the good of the patient in fostering a concept in caring that stresses the quality of remaining life.

Addressing the volunteers at the orientation session, Beverly Breault, Director of the Visiting Nurse Service, reviewed the history and development of the Hospice concept and remarked: "The volunteers are the backbone of Hospice since they spend more time with the patient than anyone other than the patient's own family." Selected through an interview process to participate in Hospice, the volunteers are: Evelyn Burkey, Joan Cote, Delores Ferro, Donald Gifford, Linda Gurney, Gloria Hathaway, Gerald McGrath, Wayne Modesto, Cathryn O'Neil, Paulette Ponte and Ann Tremblay. Currently, they

"The Cancer Society receives no money from the government or the United Way," she continued. "We are depending on the generosity of the people in Mattapoisett and other communities throughout the state to meet our goal."

Mrs. Desnoyers noted that the money raised in this year's Cancer Crusade will be allocated by the Division's volunteer Board of Directors to further a number of lifesaving programs aimed at prevention, early detection and treatment of cancer, and the rehabilitation of its victims.

"According to the standards set by the Better Business Bureau, the American Cancer Society is among the highest rated charitable organizations in the country", Diane added.

She also noted that the American Cancer Society's investment in research in 1981 claimed 38 percent of the budget in Massachusetts.

"The Society's research program is a powerful weapon in the fight against cancer," she said. "Because our grants support original ideas in the area of study that other kinds of support don't reach, we are "The American Cancer Society's investment in research at Massachusetts institutions reached $8.8 million," Mrs. Desnoyers said.

"While we are waiting for basic answers from research," she added, "we are also trying to educate people in cancer prevention and the importance of early detection and prompt treatment. In 1981, about 134,000 people with cancer will probably die because they are unfamiliar with early detection techniques. Our public education programs aimed in this direction took another 17 percent of our budget.

"In addition, hundreds of free cancer detection clinics were held, alerting people to cancer warning signals and helping them learn ways to prevent cancer," she said.

"Another important function of the Society is keeping the medical community and allied health professionals informed of the latest developments in diagnosis, treatment and rehabilitation," Mrs. Desnoyers said. "These professional education activities, including seminars and publications took 10 percent of the budget, while community service activities, and hospital grants, cancer registries and hot lines used another 7 percent."

She added that assistance to cancer patients -- transportation to and from treatment centers, loan closet items, home-making and visiting nurse assistance, rehabilitation for patients who have had an

"That comes to roughly 86 percent of our budget," she said, "and I am proud to say that, despite rising prices, we managed to keep administrative expenses to 4 percent while fund-raising costs took only 10 percent. Without our strong corps of dedicated volunteers, who do the work of the American Cancer Society, we could not keep these costs so low."

According to Anita Franks, manager and curator, the new addition, plus a selection of the WGBH-TV Art Collection, made their debut April 1 at the official 1981 season opening of the admission-free museum.

The new cranberry exhibits include a full-scale working model of a cranberry bounce separator -- a step-like device that screens the quality of cranberries by the number of bounces the berry makes as it falls. The second educational exhibit added to the collection is a giant-sized cranberry display in a cut-away view showing the berry's interior structure. The final exhibit, a dramatic, back-lit optical display with hundreds of flashing mini-lights, follows cranberries from harvest to grocery shelf with special emphasis on the distribution, marketing and sales methods of the Ocean Spray Cooperative which sponsors Cranberry World.

In addition, the museum's "Cranberry Gallery" will host a preview showing April 1-29 of twenty-three selected works by South Shore artists and individuals. All of the pieces have been donated to the annual fundraising auction of Boston's Public Broadcasting Station.

"Probably the most outstanding pieces of the WGBH-TV '2' Time! Collection," reports Ms. Franks, "are an unusual cherry and mahogany pedestal-based stand with
